Re: Chester BO 1442(39)- Contractor Input During Design- Response to RLI Questions

Bidders,

Please be advised of the following questions that were received on 4/4/2024. The Vermont Agency of Transportations (Vtrans) has provided the following response to those questions.

1. Question 1: If a contractor chooses not to submit an LOI for this project, would this preclude them from participating in future CIDD projects?
  - a. No, this would not preclude a contractor from participating in future projects utilizing the Contractor Input During Design (CIDD) method.
2. Question 2: If a contractor chooses not to submit an LOI for this project, would this preclude them from participating in future projects that utilize the model based digital project delivery.
  - a. No, this would not preclude a contractor from participating in future projects utilizing the model based digital project delivery.
3. Question 3: Will VTrans limit the number of shortlisted contractors who are selected to participate in this process? For example, design build projects often have a goal of shortlisting 3-5 contractors.
  - a. VTrans is not limiting the number of shortlisted bidders currently.
4. Question 4: Are there any limits on the number of participants that a contractor can include for their "team"?
  - a. VTrans is not limiting the number of participants within each contractor's team.
5. Question 5: Is it anticipated that contractors will be required to purchase any software, licenses, or any other technology in order to participate in this CIDD project?
  - a. No, as stated in item 5. CIDD Engagement Process, of the RLI, VTrans will provide access to the model through a website browser interface which would not require a software license of those who have been shortlisted throughout the engagement process.
