Biography

Richard A. Snelling, a Republican, served four consecutive terms as governor, from January 1977 to January 1985. He is the longest serving Vermont executive since the early nineteenth century. While governor, Snelling exercised restraint with government costs, cut income taxes and only moderately increased government spending. He organized the Governor's Cost Control Council which recommended improvements for cost savings in state government; many of the suggestions were implemented. Snelling cultivated a relationship with Quebec's Premier Rene Levesque and negotiated Hydro-Quebec energy contracts, thus reducing Vermont's dependency on Middle Eastern oil. As governor, he took a stand against the Tri-State Lottery on the grounds that it exploited the poor. He also brought new industries to Vermont and reformed the state judiciary. He worked to reform the Department of Public Safety and to reform state education. During Governor Snelling's incumbancy the state celebrated the bicentennial of the Republic of Vermont and the last section of the interstate was completed. Snelling also served on a number of national organizations while governor of Vermont. In 1977 he was elected to the National Governors' Association's executive committee and in 1981 he was elected chairman. He was also appointed to the Presidential Federalism Advisory Committee and worked with the White House on various federalism initiatives, but resisted some of Reagan's tax and budget proposals. In addition, he was appointed to the President's Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. Snelling also served as chairman of the Republican Governor's Association and the New England Regional Commission. He was a member of the Advisory Committee on Communication of the Republican National Committee.

Richard A. Snelling was a member of the Vermont House of Representatives from 1959-1961, 1973-1975, and 1975-1977. He was House Majority Leader from 1975-1977. He was also the Republican nominee for governor in 1966. A member of the Governor's Economic Development and Coordinating Committee during Deane Davis's administration, Snelling helped produce the report "Clean Water, Clean Air, Clean Land and Forty Thousand Jobs by 1980: Achieving the Environmental-Economic Balance." Throughout his career, Snelling has served on innumerable boards and commissions, including the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, the Vermont Aeronautics Board, and the Greater Burlington Industrial Corporation.

Richard Snelling was born February 18, 1927 in Allentown, PA. He is married to Barbara Weil Snelling and they have four adult children. He received an A.B. from Harvard University in 1948 in government and economics. Snelling is a business executive as well as a politician. He is the founder of Shelburne Industries, Inc. a manufacturer of hardware and ski products.

In November, 1990, Richard Snelling was again elected as Vermont's governor, the first executive to return to office after leaving since Erastus Fairbanks was re-elected in 1860.

Scope and Content

The records of Governor Richard A. Snelling contain a wealth of material on the administration of one of the most significant twentieth century governors. The basic issues of governance as well as events unique to the administration are thoroughly documented. The greatest bulk of material consists of the subject files (30 cubic feet). A wide range of topics are covered in this series including files on day care, the Nantucket Island Caper, truckers grievances, and the Abenaki. The subject series includes a good deal of material on the National Governors' Association, the New England Governors' Association and the New England Regional Commission. There is considerable material on environmental issues and the energy crisis of the 1970's, including files on negotiations to buy Canadian hydro-electric power, Act 250, acid rain, nuclear power plants and weatherization programs. There is also significant material on how the governor dealt with the economic recession of the early 1980's and his various budget policies during his administration. Included is documentation of the CETA programs in Vermont and welfare reform. The administration's encouragement of business and development in the state is also well-documented. Information on the reorganization and proposed reorganization of state agencies and departments are also found in the records. The first two terms of Snelling's administration are more thoroughly documented than the later terms. There is also some scattered material dated before Snelling became governor.

The records are arranged according to the structure of Vermont state government. Each independent agency or department constitutes a series; departments or divisions attached to independent agencies or departments are subseries within the parent agency or department. There is also a series consisting of Administrative and Advisory Boards. The boards and commissions within this series are not connected with any superagency or department and report directly to the governor's office.

The subject series contains subject files which are unrelated to particular department concerns. Within the federal government series are various subject files relating to the federal government as well as correspondence between the governor's office and various federal agencies and departments. All series are arranged alphabetically. The subseries within each series and the folders within each series and subseries are also arranged alphabetically. The table of contents lists the series and subseries. The Vermont state government organization charts were an important guide in the organization of Snelling's records; organization charts from 1977-1985 can be found in appendix A.

The Snelling administration's original filing scheme was loosely based on government structure; related files tended to be clumped together, but not consistently. Thus, order was imposed upon the records to more closely reflect government structure. The order within the folders was, however, respected and folder titles and subject headings for the most part remained the same.

The inventory is one way of accessing the Snelling records; they are also catalogued on Minaret, a MARC AMC-based microcomputer software package. Minaret immeasurably broadens the accessibility to the records. The database can be searched at the State Archives for types of records (i.e. reports, press releases, photos, etc.), original Snelling file numbers, folder titles, Library of Congress subject headings (i.e. Budget, Pollution, Transportation), corporate names (Vt. Yankee Nuclear Power Plant), geographic locations, conferences, popular names of acts, and so forth. The inventory is an introduction to the records while Minaret is a much more thorough access system.

Description

The Department of Education records cover all aspects of the Department's operation. The largest group of files consists of correspondence, memos and reports, followed by State Aid to Education. The latter includes information on the Governor's aid programs, the Miller formula, the 1 cent sales tax, Ford Foundation grants to study state aid, and the Morse-Giuliani proposal. Other files include Early Education, Printed Matter, and Special Education (which focuses on implementation of PL42-142 and special education programs), and Adult Basic Education. Related files, including the Governor's Commission on Education (known as the Jones Committee), Governor's Institutes on the Arts, Governor's Ad Hoc Commission on Higher Education, and the Vermont Advisory Council on Vocational Education, are in the Administrative and Advisory Board series.

Record #: VSA90-000077

Description

Executive Department records reflect the traditional core responsibilities of the governor's office. Included are Be It Remembered's, (appointments to state boards and commissions, as well as agency or department commissioners and secretaries), Executive Orders, and Proclamations. There are also letters and memos notifying the governor of extraditions of criminals, requests for extraditions, log sheets, and executive remittances. Letters and memos on pardon requests and the granting of pardons contain philosophical perspectives as well as files on individual cases. Deeds and leases include letters from agency heads requesting the governor's signature. Also included are Cabinet Agendas. Deeds and leases, executive remittances, extraditions and Justice of the Peace appointments will be microfilmed and destroyed.
